SMOLDERING HOT SPOTS of the heavily damaged mobile home in the 1932 4th Street in East Madison are hosed down Tuesday morning by Ed Hoover of the Madison Volunteer Fire Department.

Girl, 15, killed in trailer fire

Investigations continue

The body of Miss Cindy Pospischel, 15 years old, was found in a mobile home that burned Tuesday morning at 1932 Fourth St., East Madison, the scene of a similar fire on June 7 when another mobile home burned at 12:33 a.m.

No one was hurt in the previous fire with the exception of a dog and a cat found dead inside the home.

The Madison Fire Department was at the scene of Tuesday's fire from 7:15 a.m. until 9:45 a.m.

AFTER THE BLAZE was extinguished, the body was found and she was pronounced dead at 11:45 a.m. by Deputy Coroner Loren Davis.

Ralph Baahlmann, chief deputy coroner, said the victim apparently was overcome by smoke before suffering burns.

Dallas, Burke, Madison County coroner, said it could not be immediately determined whether the girl died in the fire or was dead before it started.

The Madison County sheriff's department, Madison County coroner's office and Madison County Task Force (a fire investigation unit) are studying evidence.

The blaze caused considerable damage to the mobile home. Miss Pospischel resided there with other family members who were not at home at the time, the county officials said.

THE CAUSE and origin of the fire have not yet been determined.

David Smith, who lives at 1918 Fourth St., said people in the neighborhood are concerned that two fires took place at the same location within about two months. They are also concerned over speculation that, with the two fires, insurance rates in that area might increase.

"We tried to stop the second mobile home from being parked at that address because the debris from the previous fire had not been cleaned up yet. Our neighborhood is quiet and we did not want any problems. We also tried to find out if the people had a permit from the Madison County Zoning Board to park the trailer there, but the zoning office would never confirm this," Smith said Tuesday.

Smith said the neighbors believe there were four people residing in the mobile home but did not know their names.

City annexations made part of Park District

By David Gosnell

GRANITE CITY — Land recently annexed by the city will now become part of the Granite City Park District service area.

The district's Board of Commissioners met on Wednesday, Aug. 13, to annex three parcels of land on the recommendation of park attorney Randall Robertson.

THE MOVE WILL add tax revenue to the district and will assure growth, said Robertson. "It will keep their options open ... for the possibility of future growth," said Robertson.

The three parcels include 121 acres owned by Illinois Power Co., 1,002 acres owned by Granite City Steel's blast furnace division and another 120 acres of privately-owned land. All have been annexed by the city.

The Illinois Power land, which is the only one of the three with residents, has two residents living on the property, said Robertson.

There are no plans to create park space on the properties.

ROBERTSON SAID the Park District is within its legal rights to pass ordinances to annex properties annexed by the city.

The annexations are necessary to keep the district's boundaries continuous with the city's boundaries; such actions are optional for the district and beneficial to the community, said Robertson.

He said the district can also annex other land outside the district if

Body found in lake

GRANITE CITY — The body of an 18-year-old East St. Louis man, who drowned in Horseshoe Lake Sunday, was found Wednesday morning.

Members of the Long Lake Fire Department recovered the body of Terrance T. Willis, 2909 Colgate Ave., East St. Louis, about 6:40 a.m. Aug. 20.

Mr. Willis was pronounced dead at 7:53 a.m. by Madison County Deputy Coroner Ed Morton.

An autopsy was scheduled to be performed Wednesday afternoon, Morton said. The cause of death is still under investigation, he added.

MR. WILLIS drowned when he was wading in the lake at about 7:10 p.m. Sunday, Aug. 17, with two men near Quality Sand. He stepped into a deep area, Illinois State Police said.

Ginger Booker sings her way to best at fair

By Valerie Evenden

Staff writer

Residents in and around the Quad-City Area will not be surprised by the news Ginger Booker captured first place for overall talent at the Illinois State Fair.

Now the rest of the state is becoming aware of the 17-year-old Madison vocalist, whose superior voice has won the admiration and respect of area audiences for the past several years.

GINGER'S SUCCESS in the first talent contest ever to be sponsored by the Illinois State Fair earned a $1,000 cash award and a "beautiful" trophy for the youthful singer. She first won the vocalist (female solo) division of the contest Friday, finishing in first place over 21 other contestants, whose ages ranged from 16 to 35.

On Saturday, Aug. 16, Ginger — as the winner of her category — and another female vocalist were selected to appear in the grand finals.

At this point, her competition was not only the runner-up female vocalist, but 16 other finalists including male vocalists, dance soloists, dance groups, entire bands, instrumental soloists, keyboard artists, vocal groups and variety acts. Crime on increase in GC

By Bill Bagby

Staff writer

GRANITE CITY — Major crimes in the city increased 8.1 percent in the first six months of 1986 compared to the same period last year. One of the largest increases occurred in the number of homicides, said Police Chief Bill Harris. Five murders were committed in the first half of this year, compared to none last year.

TWO OF THE five homicides occurred April 30 with the double murder of Granite City realtor Carl Hoffman and his wife, Susan.

The Hoffmans were found the following day in their home at 1547 Rodger Ave. by an employee of Carl Hoffman's real estate firm.

The other three murders in the first half of 1986 were the beating death of Ricky Sanders in February, the shooting death of James "Buddy" Clubb on March 4, and the stabbing death of Charles Parker on May 7.

HARRIS SAID there is no specific reason why the murder rate has increased. "There's no explanation for it," he said. "It fluctuates."

Suspects are awaiting trial in all five murder cases, Harris said.

JACK G. BRUCE, accused killer of the Hoffmans, is scheduled to go on trial Aug. 25. Also awaiting trial are Robert Carroll in the Sanders case, James Albert Seisser in the Clubb murder and David Patterson in the Parker case.

Harris praised his department for clearing all five murder cases.

"We have a professional department," he said. "We have a lot of fine, well-educated police officers."

CRIMES OF criminal sexual abuse, including rape, incest, sodomy and indecent liberties with a child, doubled in the first half of 1986. Twelve cases were reported, compared to six cases in the same period last year.

Harris said television specials dealing with sexual abuse have increased public awareness and the willingness of victims to report such crimes.

"They're making the public aware that it's OK to report these incidents," he said. HE ADDED that a lack of prevention is another factor in the rise of sexual abuse cases.

"Things aren't being done to prevent abuses in the future," he said. Another increase occurred in assaults, which rose 39 percent (198 in 1985 to 276 in 1986).

ALSO ON THE rise were crimes of larceny, up 7.4 percent (403 in 1985 to 433 in 1986) and auto theft, up 37 percent (27 in 1985 to 37 in 1986).

The number of robberies remained the same with 14 cases reported for both periods. Crimes of auto burglary and burglary decreased in the first half of 1986 compared to 1985. Auto burglary was down 15.9 percent (146 in 1986 from 126 in 1985). Burglary declined 13.9 percent (180 in 1986 from 209 in 1985).

HARRIS SAID the decrease was partly due to a high burglary rate in the first half of last year, when a group of intruders was burglarizing homes daily.

The group contained at least three people. Suspects were arrested in the spring of last year, the chief said.

Cases cleared by arrest in the first half of 1986 were down 13 percent,

Spalding named principal

By Dave Gosnell

Staff writer

GRANITE CITY — Experience and seniority were cited as reasons the District 9 Board of Education chose Grigsby Junior High Principal Ken Spalding as the district's new high school principal.

Spalding was picked from among four candidates at the board's regular meeting Tuesday. The decision was unanimous, though board member Monroe Worthen was not present.

"WE HAD SEVERAL really fine candidates. Mr. Spalding was senior in seniority and the only one to be a lead principal at a building," said Board President Dewey Melton.

He said Spalding had more administrative experience than the other two leading candidates, assistant high school principals Vic Buehler and Pat Schuman.

The principal position was left vacant when the board appointed Granite City High School Principal Gilbert Walmsley as superintendent Aug. 5. Walmsley was selected when Jim Dumont resigned as superintendent after only seven days on the job. Dumont was chosen when Max Redmond resigned.

MELTON SAID Spalding was the choice of a joint interviewing committee. The committee was comprised of board members and administrative and faculty representatives, mainly from the high school. The committee met in executive session at a special board meeting Monday to interview the candidates. Two board members, David Partney and Alan Crider, commented Tuesday that the decision was a difficult one to make.

Student apathy main target

By Dave Gosnell

Staff writer

GRANITE CITY — Newly-appointed Granite City High School Principal Ken Spalding finds himself "bouncing back and forth" this week.

Spalding was appointed principal by the Board of Education on Tuesday night. On Wednesday, with less than a week before the school term begins, he was found at his desk at the high school.

"I'VE GOT to get myself organized," he said.

Spalding still had a few loose ends to tie up at his old job as Grigsby Junior High School principal, but there is much to be done at the high school and Spalding was anxious to get started.

Spalding credited the assistant principals, two of whom were candidates for principal, with making his transition easier.

"THEY ARE certainly making the operation go," he said. Assistant high school principals Pat Schuman and Vic Buehler had also applied for the principal position.

Spalding said there would be "no problem at all" in working with the two. "We've had our initial meeting already," he said.

Spalding, 47, said he realizes that being turned down for a job can be disappointing.

"You can't help but be disappointed. They are good, strong, professional educators and administrators," Spalding said.

A 23-YEAR employee of District 9 schools, Spalding describes himself as a direct person.

"What you see is what you get. I'm up front. I like to try to keep surprises to a minimum," he said.

Spalding does not expect to initiate

New law provides pupil transport funds if traffic in area hazardous

Gov. James Thompson has signed a bill allowing parents or guardians to receive reimbursement for transportation of a school child who lives within a mile and a half of the school he or she attends if hazardous conditions due to vehicular traffic exist.

Such conditions are: if walking constitutes a serious hazard to the safety of the pupil due to vehicular traffic and if the student does not have access to transportation provided entirely at public expense to and from the school and the student's residence.

The Illinois Department of Transportation (IDOT) is required to determine what constitutes a serious safety hazard.

For IDOT to make that determination, a student's parent or guardian must complete an application which is available from Harold E. Briggs, Regional Superintendent of Schools, 201 Hillsboro, Edwardsville, Ill. The form may be obtained by calling 1-662-6200, extension 4641, and asking for Sue.

This form, entitled "Application for Determination of Serious Safety Hazard," has been developed for a parent or guardian to submit that a serious safety hazard exists. After IDOT's district office receives the completed form from the regional superintendent, the office will approve or disapprove within 30 days and forward a notice of its determination to the superintendent, who will then send that decision to the parent or guardian.

If the claim is approved by IDOT, the parent or guardian may be eligible to receive up to $50 per child.

In order to qualify for reimbursement, parents or guardians must file a request for the certification of a serious safety hazard with the superintendent no later than Sept. 1, 1986, for the 1985-86 school year.

During the 1986-87 school year and after, the request for determination of a serious safety hazard is required to be filed by Feb. 1 of the school year for which reimbursement is claimed.

This law is in addition to another law which provides state reimbursement to parents or guardians who provided transportation to and from school because free transportation was not available for children who reside a distance greater than a mile and a half from their attendance center.

This reimbursement will still be handled by the school where the child is enrolled. The hazardous conditions law will be handled through Supt. Briggs' office.

FIRST IN THE NATION. Francis X. Flaherty, mayor of Warwick, Rhode Island (left), and Hans M. Arsovic, president of Eticam (right), sign a siting agreement providing the city with direct input in the operation of the company's wastewater treatment and resource recovery facility, located in the community. The agreement, which came out of a U.S. EPA project to develop a model for the siting of hazardous waste facilities in the U.S., was hailed by the mayor as landmark legislation and the first of its kind in the U.S.

Eticam achieving full 'recycling' in processing hazardous wastes

Eticam, the Warwick, Rhode Island, wastewater treatment and resource recovery company preparing to construct a plant in Granite City, this month participated in what is being described as a "landmark achievement."

Eticam gained a state permit to process a variety of hazardous wastes and entered into a siting agreement with the city of Warwick regarding the operation of its facilities.

TOGETHER, the permit and agreement allow the company to expand its current operations — limited to processing hazardous wastes containing precious metals — to include the treatment of cyanide, acid and alkali solutions containing base metals.

While classified as a hazardous waste treatment facility, Eticam does not rely on traditional treatment and landfill measures in the processing of hazardous wastes.

Instead, the company takes metal-bearing wastes — generally from the jewelry, electronics and metal finishing industries — removes precious and base metals, destroys cyanide, and returns a non-toxic effluent to municipal waste treatment. The Eticam process offers a total recycling approach to the problem of hazardous waste disposal, authorities say.

THE SITING agreement, a 20-year contract between the city of Warwick and Eticam that delineates specific operating procedures the company must follow at its Warwick plant, was hailed as precedent-setting legislation by Warwick Mayor Francis X. Flaherty.

"It's the first of its kind in the nation," he said of the agreement, which came out of a U.S. Environmental Protection Agency project to develop a model for the siting of hazardous waste facilities in the U.S.

"And, it's an agreement that guarantees a voice for our community."

Kate Connors of the U.S. EPA said the agreement is a "good model" — one we can be proud of," and added the agreement would be used by the EPA in siting hazardous waste facilities throughout the nation.

COMMENTS on Eticam, Connors said, "The EPA is very anxious to better hazardous waste treatment in this country and Eticam provides that kind of facility. It's not landfill and it's not waste treatment. It's recycling."

Hans M. Arsovic, president of Eticam, said, "Eticam, the city of Warwick, the state of Rhode Island and the U.S. EPA have demonstrated that, by working together, problems and differences in the siting of hazardous waste facilities can be positively resolved."

Arsovic called the terms of the agreement "very tough," but said he was certain Eticam would meet them.

"We're looking at this facility as a showcase for America," he added.

In issuing the state permit, the state of Rhode Island noted, "The proposed plan for operation of the (Eticam) facility encompasses all necessary safeguards to protect the health and welfare of the environment and the residents of Warwick."

THE STATE also recognized the need for a facility of this kind in Rhode Island, citing testimony that "businesses within a 50-mile radius of the facility generate 10 million gallons of metal-bearing solutions suitable for treatment by Eticam."

Eticam's capacity for treatment at its Warwick facility is 500,000 gallons per month. Eticam expansion plans call for the construction and operation of plants in Granite City, in Fernley, Nev., and in Temple, Texas.

Computer fair planned by club

"Keys to the Future" is the theme of the fourth annual computer-fair sponsored by the Fairview Heights-based Gateway Computer Club, which includes Quad-Citians.

The event, aimed at educating the public on the ease and fun of using home computers, will be at St. Clair Square, Illinois 159 at I-64, beginning at 10 a.m. and continuing through 9 p.m.

"The Commodore computers users' group will demonstrate a wide variety of software for the popular and inexpensive line of personal computers throughout the day, and interested persons can even get hand-on demonstrations of the computers," a spokesman said.

The fair will take place on the lower level of the mall near the entrance to JC Penney. There is no charge for the demonstrations, and those interested in joining the group may obtain coupons for $5 off the usual $15 membership fee.

Easy-to-use programs ranging from electronic checkbooks, word processors, graphic design, games and educational development will be among those shown.

The club meets the third Wednesday of every month at 7 p.m. at the Caseyville Township Hall, 1000 Bunkum Road, Fairview Heights. Interested persons are welcome at the meetings.

Drugs, eating disorders, abuse affect many pupils

A series of books on the most serious nonacademic issues facing students during 1986-87 has been issued by the National Education Association.

Titled "How Schools Can Help Combat..." the books address drug and alcohol abuse, teen pregnancy, eating disorders, child abuse, and teen depression and suicide.

The NEA has been in the forefront of the struggle to reduce the nation's high school dropout rate, which is now over 30 percent. A million young people a year drop out of school before graduation.

"Being sensitive to the complex lives of those we teach will help teachers prevent a student from becoming another dropout statistic, or another cocaine fatality, or another teen who becomes pregnant," said NEA President Mary Hatwood Futrell.

"We're in the business of teaching, and we can't teach those students who are suffering from anorexia nervosa, or are traumatized by physical abuse, or are drinking themselves into oblivion."

She cited statistics showing that —

- About one-fourth of all high school students regularly smoke marijuana and more than two-thirds use alcohol. Eight percent of sixth graders use marijuana.

• If current trends continue, four out of 10 girls who are now 14 will get pregnant in their teens.

• About 15 percent of young American women will be anorexic during part of all of their teenage years if today's trend remains steady.

• One out of three girls and one out of eight boys under 18 have reported incidents of sexual abuse.

• Suicide is still the third most common cause of death among young people 15 to 24 years old, after accidents and homicide, and is the second most common cause of death among 15- to 19-year-olds.

"As unusual as it may seem for a school to take on these issues, it's vitally important that we address these serious problems," Futrell said. "They are being brought into our classrooms. They affect learning."

"Troubled students can alter a school's learning environment. Teachers care about all students being able to learn effectively and creatively."

"We want to help students believe in themselves, develop self-esteem, meet high standards, and not fall victim to social pressures."

Deadline soon on GCC scholarship

The deadline to apply for a $500 Pontoon Beach Lions Club 1986-87 scholarship to Belleville Area College is Aug. 25, according to Dr. George H. Goodwin, scholarship chairman.

The scholarship is open to all area residents attending BACC's Granite City Campus although special consideration will be given to Pontoon Beach persons.

The scholarship is for two semesters and it is designed to pay for tuition and books for the academic year.

Applications may be filed with Mary Brown, financial aid director at GCC. A committee representing the college and the Pontoon Beach Lions will select the recipients of the scholarship within a week after the deadline.

Jail in Madison being improved

The Madison City Council has accepted the resignation of Phyllis Moore as a police dispatcher and has noted improvements to the city jail.

Police Chief Charles Bridick reported that all recommended sanitation improvements in the jail area have been completed, as well as painting work in compliance with the state code.

The second phase of the current improvement program, replacement of jail windows, is in progress.

The chief reported that a traffic accident this month involving a squad car resulted in the insurance company giving a $3,000 estimate to repair the vehicle or a possible total payout. The city has purchased a 1978 Ford LTD from the Illinois state government for $1,500, Bridick said.

A statement from St. Clair County forwarding $186 in law enforcement fines, was accepted by the council. Part of Madison, in the Illinois 203 area, is in St. Clair.

A report on the city's alarm system from May 6 to July 31 showed bills amounting to $20,476 were sent out and the city received $18,864 in return. Expenses for that period amounted to $19,544.

Bridge takeover badly needed

It may cost $50 million to rehabilitate the Martin Luther King Bridge — increasing its lane utilization from two to four, strengthening its supports, improving its surface, and providing new connections to make it a part of the Interstate highway system.

But it will be worth it. The improvement will be done in conjunction with making it toll-free. And the project will greatly expand the safety, capacity and effectiveness of Illinois' links to downtown St. Louis. No longer will the St. Louis area be putting so many of its "eggs in one basket," the often-crowded and sometimes-blocked Poplar Street Bridge.

Essential to such progress will be a takeover by the states of Illinois and Missouri, unleashing not only state but federal funds for operation and maintenance.

For this to happen, the King Bridge must become debt-free. Meeting with its toll-bridge against the nearby free Poplar Bridge, East St. Louis has found it impossible to make adequate repairs and to pay off the King Bridge's bond debt.

Bondholders have not been getting any money in recent years. They now are being offered nearly half of the full value of their otherwise defaulted bonds and we urge them to accept it. The two states and local taxing bodies, such as the Madison County Transit District, are digging deep to help finance this necessary, logical and reasonable acquisition and improvement proposal.

As outlined at a governors' meeting on the King Bridge, Missouri will be the lead state in seeking federal discretionary bridge funds and Illinois will provide 75 percent of the required matching funds for initial rehabilitation. Illinois also will be the lead agency for design, construction and maintenance; it immediately will start nearly $1 million in detailed engineering work. There can be a happy ending to what has been a long and distressing story of bridge congestion and deterioration. It can be a reality, if there is a true spirit of cooperation by all parties, much like that already being displayed.

Industrial parks are succeeding

"To attract industries, you need all the right assets. And instead of undeveloped land, you need curbs and gutters, zoning and utility lines already in place."

This advice was followed in the 1960s when the City of Madison established the quickly-successful Stephen Maeras Industrial Park. And it also applies in the 1980s, with Illinois Power Company encouraging businesses to use its Northside Industrial Park on the west side of Illinois 3 south of Interstate 270.

With such companies as Precast Metals and Heideman Steel Products already built and in operation, and a Specialized Services manufacturing center now under construction, ground is being broken today for two new structures at Northgate.

Ralph Korte Construction Co. will erect a 32,000-square-foot single-tenant building for light, medium or heavy manufacturing and also a multi-tenant 24,000-square-foot plant designed to handle office facilities, warehouse distribution or light manufacturing.

The Quad-City Area owes gratitude toward the late Mayor Maeras, such Illinois Power predecessor, Edwin G. Schmitt, plus Ralph Korte and Granite City Steel leaders; the latter opened former General Steel (Commonwealth plant) facilities here to a variety of companies in the 1970s.

Thanks to such farsighted efforts, this community has made considerable progress in achieving a transition — from its role as the site of a few big industries a generation ago, to its present status as a magnet for a large number of firms ranging from small to large.

The other 'coke' cheap, deadly

During campus visits I am frequently asked about "legalizing marijuana."

After all, it is argued, it's now a $17-billion business; pot is no worse than alcohol in its effects — so why not legalize it?

The flaw in that argument is that the potency of marijuana since it was a "backyard weed" has been multiplied. Today's, Colombian is hallucinogenic.

There are some who believe cocaine, now a $100-billion business, is not all that bad, should be legalized. Or at least should be made so available that coke-heads could anesthetize themselves without having to steal for it.

Let's test that theory. Let's imagine that you could go down to the corner drugstore right now and purchase cocaine without prescription and without questions.

Legalized, it would be available in many forms — powder for sniffing, coca cigarettes, coca cheroots, coca inhalant.

The idea is not new. That is the

Paul Harvey News

By Paul Harvey
L.A. Times Syndicate

way it was 100 years ago. In the 1880s there was an open market on all drugs.

Parke-Davis and Company introduced commercial cocaine in 1885 and within one year every drugstore had a supply and manufacturers were forced to multiply their capacity again and again.

Experts assured the public that cocaine was "harmless," even "therapeutic."

A United States surgeon general recommended it.

Cocaine, pure and cheap, was "as common as coffee" by 1910. Per-capita drug use was at least as high as today's.

Until, by 1912, the damage to users and their families became so apparent that drug use became abhorrent.

Again — the epidemic lasted 35 years until there was a public outcry.

Eugene O'Neill's play "Long Day's Journey into Night" was an effective part of that outcry.

Peer pressure, which can lead to drug use, is also a potent force against drug use.

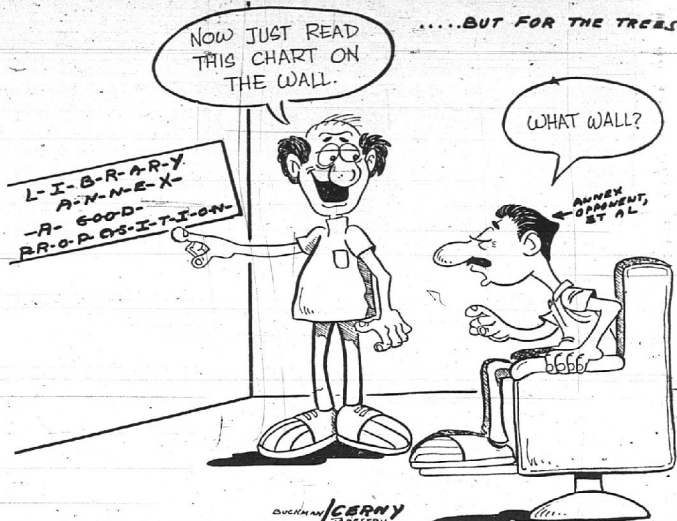

When public approval became public repugnance, multiplied to overwhelming, then — in 1914 — the Harrison anti-narcotic act became law.

And cocaine use faded into obscurity until now.

Vale psychiatry professor David Musto believes that "crack," the new, cheaper, more potent form of cocaine, might be bad enough to revive a public demand for drug law enforcement.

History says that first the public must care.

Retrial granted on minor technicality

To the editor: Justice is the administration of law, especially the establishment or determination of rights according to the rules of law or equity.

Whatever happened to justice? Did it go out the window with progress?

Today's criminals get far less punishment for murder than for molesting or for spying.

Fact: In recent (Metro East) area news a coach was convicted of molesting his students and received 180 years in prison.

Fact: In recent news a man was convicted of spying and received three life sentences plus 70 years in prison.

Fact: Four years ago a man was convicted of malicious murder and received 60 years in prison. He is eligible for parole in 20 years (7 is the minimum); 20 years from now he may be walking the streets to murder again. Or the possibility is even sooner.

This particular murderer is being held in the Madison County jail pending a retrial on a minor technicality.

ty; a past conviction brought into the trial in testimony of the accused himself, concerning his past conduct towards society.

Is this justice? No way! Justice is when the criminal gets exactly what he deserves.

What kind of justice does the victim deserve? His case is turned over to the courts/society and left for them to decide the fate of the accused, in which most times they decide prison. Going to prison is getting off easy.

So what if they take their freedom and constitutional rights away? What right they take from their victims? They took their lives, their ambitions and their futures.

For what? With many we will never know.

Prison life is sometimes easier on criminals than the outside world was. They have privileges, and they have rights. They have a place to sleep, food to eat, projects to keep them out of trouble and money to their name.

Many criminals didn't even have all this before prison. But most importantly of all, they have the privilege of a life to live, even if it may not be worth the ground they walk on.

They still have that privilege to see their kids, their wives, to smell the flowers, and to feel a cool breeze. And a criminal has the nerve to complain about life in prison, by appealing on every little loophole his attorney can find. He should feel grateful that the citizens didn't do him as he did to another.

And what, I ask you, privileges do the victims have? None.

They've had all of their dreams, their hopes and their years taken away. From someone that just doesn't give a second thought to how precious life really is.

Yes, the victim has no rights, no privileges, no complaints. The victims are forever silent.

The Good Book says that it is better to forgive. But how can you forgive someone you'll never forget?

Court chief must symbolize justice

To the editor: The Senate Judiciary Committee has approved two nominations for the United States Supreme Court — William Rehnquist as chief justice and Antonin Scalia as associate justice. Few votes that I cast on the committee will equal their importance.

The full Senate will take up the nominations in September. I entered the hearings inclined to confirm both nominees. But after the evidence was presented and weighed, I decided to vote against one of the nominees, Mr. Rehnquist.

I asked myself two basic questions: Will this nominee fulfill the responsibilities well and will this nominee be better than someone else the President might name?

In reaching these decisions, at the Supreme Court level consideration of political philosophy is not only in order, it is required if the Senate is to take our responsibilities seriously.

William Rehnquist wrote in the Harvard Law Record in 1969: "Until the Senate restores its practice of thoroughly informing itself on the judicial philosophy of a Supreme Court nominee before voting to confirm him, it will have a hard time convincing doubters that it could make effective use of any additional part in the selection process."

The future Supreme Court justice was correct. In the case of Justice Rehnquist, he clearly has the capability to continue as a top legal scholar, and I have no question about his ability to administer the court as its chief justice.

I have serious reservations about his ability to fulfill the role of the symbol of justice for all of our people.

His record on civil rights and civil liberties going back long before his years on the court is not strong. His vision of the law alienates large numbers of Americans.

I ask myself the question: Will this nominee be better than someone else the President might name? The reality is that any member of the court can fulfill the role of chief justice as the symbol of justice for all the people better than Justice Rehnquist can.

I am opposing his nomination, recognizing the strong probability that he will be approved. If that happens, I hope he will understand the added symbolic responsibilities of his new role.

In the case of Judge Scalia I again recognize his ability. He is more rigid on some issues, such as affirmative action, than I would like. But he shows flashes of open-mindedness.

If he should be turned down, I have no reason to believe that the President will nominate anyone who would serve better as an associate justice.

I voted for Judge Scalia.

Fund reports gibberish, treasurer says, but denies they are his duty

By Donna Kimbro

MADISON — City spending, past and present, is the subject of differing opinions by some of the municipal officials. Personal friction appears to be developing over the disagreement.

Plans for an Aug. 25 meeting to help decide on the tax levy for the May 1986-April 1987 fiscal year were announced by Mayor John Bellico at an Aug. 12 City Council meeting. Announcement of the meeting prompted Fred Bathon, city treasurer, to verbally disagree with a financial report presented by Rick Tuika, city comptroller.

"I HAVE TALKED with the comptroller on these reports and have gotten the same gibberish you are getting tonight," Bathon said.

"You (the aldermen) are asked to set a tax levy, and how are you going to do this with these reports?" Bellico told Bathon it is Bathon's job to make the reports, and not the comptroller's duty.

Bathon replied, "I will bring my own attorney in here to state my responsibilities and to talk with (City Attorney) Larry Hartman, and I will hire someone who is competent."

"YOUR REMARKS are unfair and unjust, Fred," the mayor said. In setting Aug. 25 as the meeting date to discuss the tax levy, Bellico asked the comptroller, city attorney and aldermen to be present and participate.

The mayor also said he wants the comptroller, attorney and treasurer to meet with him and a representative of Peat, Marwick & Mitchell, certified public accountants, to finalize the city audit.

"THIS FINAL report will be published in the newspaper so taxpayers can see what has taken place during the year," the mayor said. "I will have remarks to make at that time."

Aldermen this summer have discussed the prospect of a revenue-expenditure imbalance and a potential deficit.

The question of a deficit brought a suggestion Aug. 12 from Alderman William Gushel that a meeting be set for the council finance committee.

In response, Bellico said, "The finance committee does not have to meet at this time."

"THIS SITUATION did not start in May 1985 (when Bellico, Bathon and some of the other officials began their elective terms)."

"It has been coming for many years. The city has had deficit spending and it will be explained that the previous city administration had lax spending."

"I will explain all this after the audit, but I appreciate your concern, Bill," Bellico concluded.

Chouteau to petition for revenue sharing

By Norma Mendoza
Correspondent

CHOUTEAU — The Township Board agreed Monday night to collect signatures for a petition drive in support of federal legislation to extend General Revenue Sharing to 1990.

Without extension, the federal government's practice of sharing federal revenue with local governments will end this fiscal year, Sept. 30.

THE PETITIONS will be sent to Sen. Paul Simon and Sen. Alan Dixon. The drive was begun by Thornton Township.

Chouteau Township Supervisor Morris Miles said General Revenue Sharing funds are used by the township for special projects.

The Township Building was built with the funds, and activities for children and senior citizens are paid for with them.

MILES SAID the Chouteau

Citizens Group will sponsor a meeting Tuesday, Aug. 26, at 7 p.m., to explain a new state law which affects cities and townships having contiguous boundaries.

Jim Sinclair, attorney for the township, will explain how the legislation applies to annexations. The meeting will be in the Township Building.

HIGHWAY Commissioner Joe Stefanoff reported that the mosquito sprayer is being repaired and should be back in service soon.

The next regular meeting of the Township Board will be moved to Tuesday, Sept. 2, because of Labor Day.

Demolition of homes sought

GRANITE CITY — Demolition or repair of two more houses in the city will be sought.

The Granite City Council unanimously passed two resolutions Tuesday night providing for demolition or repair of the houses.

The residences, located at 2601 E. 25th St. and 2601 Sheridan Ave., have been deemed dangerous and unsafe by city building inspector John Jakich.

A written notice will be sent to the owners of the homes and the city will apply for a court order to have the buildings demolished or repaired, unless demolition or repair is made within 15 days of receipt of the notice.

Ground being broken for 2 manufacturing buildings

Groundbreaking ceremonies were being held at 11 a.m. today, Aug. 21, at the Northgate Industrial Park.

Illinois Power Co., Butler Buildings Inc. and Ralph Korte Construction Co. Inc. arranged the groundbreaking at the site of two separate and distinct buildings serving office, distribution and industrial users on Illinois 3, directly south of Heidtman Steel, on Northgate Industrial Drive in Granite City.

Korte is constructing a total of three new buildings at Northgate Park. Ground was broken July 7 for a Specialized Services facility.

The Granite City Council on July 1 passed two resolutions.

The first resolution provided for issuance of $900,000 in industrial development bonds to allow Korte to construct a 22,500-square-foot building for the new home of Specialized Services Inc.

David Butler, of Korte, told the aldermen that 7,500 feet of the building would be used for office space, and the rest for manufacturing. The building will occupy two acres of land.

Specialized Services will have a lease on the building for 20 years with an option for 10 more years.

Butler said. The new facility should be completed by fall.

Specialized's present location, at 2118 Grand Ave., is slated for demolition under the city's tax increment financing plan.

The other resolution provided for issuing $1,750,000 in industrial project revenue bonds to allow Korte to erect two other buildings in the industrial park.

The first will be used as a multi-tenant building, Butler said, and will be designed to handle office facilities, warehouse distribution or light manufacturing.

Depending on the user, Butler said, 75 to 125 jobs could be created.

The 24,000-square-foot building will occupy 3½ acres of land. The other building will be designed for light to heavy manufacturing for a single-tenant user, Butler said.

Depending on the user, 150 to 175 jobs could be created.

The 32,000-square-foot building is expected to be completed by November.

Butler said it is vital for the buildings to be constructed so possible tenants can inspect them, instead of looking at a blueprint.

"They can size it up," he said. "They like to kick the brick."

FLAT FEET IN CHILDREN

All babies seem to have flat feet, but podiatric examination makes good sense if your baby's feet still look flat when he or she begins to stand. Do this before age two, when the arch starts to develop.

Early treatment of diagnosed congenital flat feet uses an orthotic device, made from an impression of your child's foot in correct position. The device supports, protects and maintains alignment of the entire foot, not just the arch.

Flat feet due to poor alignment of bones, immature bone quality, loose ligaments, neuro-motor and muscular weakness need to be corrected with prescribed inserts. These keep feet in a neutral position prior to pushoff and keep the heel from depressing. Your podiatrist can help protect your child against poor foot functions in later life.

Life-safety work starts in Venice

By Valerie Evenden
Staff writer

VENICE — Metal exterior doors required under the Illinois Life-Safety Act shortly will be installed at the Venice Public Schools.

Architect Henry Gabriel opened bids submitted by four companies at Thursday's meeting.

BOARD MEMBERS awarded a contract to the Homola Construction Co., 508 English Lane, Mitchell, which submitted a low bid of $9,977.

Other bidders were Lamar Moore Construction, Rutte Construction Co., and Poettker Construction Co.

Noting the wide range between the low bid and the highest bid of $13,745, Gabriel explained the Homola firm is a smaller company, primarily a father-son operation.

"THE (HOMOLA) has submitted an insurance certificate with his proposal and he has done some work for us before," Gabriel informed the board.

The project involves framing and installing double metal exterior doors at school entrances, metal doors at the breezeway area connecting the high school and grade school, and a boiler room exit.

New doors for the gymnasium were not included, the architect said, responding to a question from Superintendent of Schools Robert Vickers. "This contract will take care of the exterior doors listed in the Life-Safety survey," Gabriel said.

If the board elects to have the current gym door removed and new doors installed, he suggested negotiating a unit price with the contractor.

"IF THE DOORS are bad we should replace them because of deterioration," the architect said. The board authorized Gabriel to obtain a unit price from Homola and notify the superintendent if additional doors and frames are needed.

Gabriel conducted the original Life-Safety survey and an updated version of the Venice schools.

REQUIRED BY LAW, the survey is designed to uncover defects which may affect the well-being of students. The goal is to bring specific areas within school buildings up to standard requirements.

In other business, 5 percent salary increases were approved for aides and bus drivers in the Venice School District, the same raises given the workers last year.

When cafeteria employees and other non-certificated personnel were awarded pay increases at a previous board session, the district's six aides, two full-time bus drivers and a part-time driver-custodian were not included, Vickers explained.

Hired BY THE BOARD was Essie Walker, who will serve as a classroom and playground aide at the grade school. She will work six hours each school day.

Vickers said a teacher no longer will be available for playground duty and a replacement was necessary.

Walker worked as a substitute aide in the district four or five years ago and last year was employed as a part-time aide, assigned to help with a large sixth grade class.

FIRST NATIONAL Bank in Madison was selected by the school board to handle a $100,000 Life-Safety bond issue, which is presently being prepared by school district Attorney Michael Sullivan.

The bank's quoted interest rate was 6.75 percent, 1 percent lower than the quote from a second area bank, Vickers said.

Price cites increase in training at Depot

"Although the probability of turning the St. Louis Area Support Center in Granite City into a major Army training base is unlikely, that does not mean the facility is not already being used for reserve training," U.S. Rep. Melvin Price said this week.

Price said the Reserve Naval Construction Support Unit now training at the Support Center, the former Granite City Army Depot, will be expanded into a battalion Sept. 6.

"This change of status will bring in units from Cape Girardeau, Mo., and Evansville, Ind., to train in Granite City. The unit moved two years ago from a St. Louis site because of size constraints," Price told the Press-Record/Journal.

"Besides this group, the Coast Guard and Army also have reserve units training at the site."

"And another Navy unit now working with the McDonnell Douglas Corp. — built F-16 is looking to move its training to Granite City."

"These activities provide a boost for the Tri-Cities Area economy," Price said. "However, I will continue to pursue other avenues to expand development of the Support Center."

"The Granite City facility is a finalist to replace Ft. McCoy in Wisconsin for training purposes."

"However, it is believed a not-yet-completed Army study will show the cost of expanding Ft. McCoy is cheaper than developing a new training facility."

'Head Start' still has openings here

Family Service and Visiting Nurse Association-Project Head Start has announced that parents who missed the initial recruitment period still have an opportunity to enroll their children in Head Start.

Enrollment applications will be accepted for children living in the Granite City school district and who will be four years old by Oct. 1, 1986. To make an appointment in Venice, parents are to call 877-2097 or 463-5950 as soon as possible.

Documents needed at the time of enrollment:

1. Proof of birth for child.
2. Income verification.
3. Parents' Social Security numbers.
4. Two emergency contacts.

The U.S. Air Force Thunderbirds jet demonstration squadron will headline the show. The six-member jet team will continue its 34-year career, demonstrating precision ensemble and solo work in General Dynamics F-16 Fighting Falcons.

The Thunderbirds are expected to arrive at 2 p.m. Thursday, Aug. 21. They will perform at Air Rendezvous Saturday.

Other events include:

- The Eagles Aerobatic Flight Team, featuring three aerobatic champions flying three Christen Eagle biplanes. The pilots, Charlie Hillard, Gene Soucy and Tom Poberenzny, who have been flying together since 1971, have all won the U.S. National Aerobatic title.

- The Coors Light Silver Bullet with Bob Bishop. Returning for the second year, Bishop thrills the crowd in the world's smallest jet, featured on the Coors Beer commercials.

- Charlie Wells and his Pitts Special. Wells is from Springfield and does a dazzling aerobatic routine which has been featured for a number of years at the St. Louis V-P Fair.

- Bill Leff and the AT-6 Texan Warbird. Leff, from the Bloomington, Ill., flies a World War II trainer through numerous aerobatic routines.

- Earl Adkisson and the 1968 French Demoiselle. Adkisson, from Atwood, Illinois, puts his antique airplane through the paces reminiscent of early days of aviation. The airplane was used in the movie, Those Magnificent Men and Their Flying Machines.

- The Popei Skywriter, Suzanne Asbury-Oliver and husband, Steve Oliver and their dog, Charley Brown. The Popei Skywriter was seen over the skies of central Illinois last year during Air Rendezvous and will return for a repeat sky-writing engagement.

The Red Baron Squadron. The Red Barons fly four recently-retooled 450-hp Stearman biplanes through aerobatic maneuvers and in formation routines.

In addition, a large number of military demonstration aircraft, homebuds, warbirds, antiques, classics and radio-controlled airplanes will be featured during the two days of Air Rendezvous.

Some of the military acts expected are a C-5, the world's largest military transport plane, and the F-15, C-130 cargo, C-9 and AV-8B Harrier.

After each act, the performer will be chaffered along the flightline for an applause ride and then proceed to the autograph tent to sign autographs.

Two hangar parties, open to the public, are planned for both Friday and Saturday nights with live bands, food and other refreshments along with the opportunity to meet many of the aviation performers.

All fly-ins are encouraged and welcomed. Homebuds and warbirds will receive free admission if the planes are put on static display.

Gates open each day at 9 a.m., and $3 can be saved by purchasing tickets in advance. Advance ticket prices for adults are $8 for both days and $5 for one day. Children's tickets ages 6-12 are $4 for both days and $2 for one day. Seniors citizens 65 years and older and children under 6 will be admitted free.

Preferred seating will also be available. This year, Preferred seating tickets are $15 for adults and include a chair and tent area.

For additional air show information and to order tickets, the air show office can be called Monday through Friday at 1-217-788-1099.

Warfield, Gibson, others in State Fair limelight

SPRINGFIELD — Back in the days when Richard J. Daley was mayor of Chicago, Democrats used to fill the grandstand at the Illinois State Fair with thousands of precinct committeemen and city employees on "Democrats Day."

Politics has been inextricably linked with the State Fair throughout its history. Abraham Lincoln once gave a political speech when the fair was up Alton in 1856, before the event took up its permanent residency in Springfield.

The appearance of President Ronald Reagan last week was about the closest thing to the big rallies, since they faded away after Daley's death.

Democrats in the Daley days used to even have big parades marching to the fairgrounds. They attempted to revive it about five years ago but it was a feeble effort.

Republicans did a little better when they got a couple of thousand or so in a parade. They even gave away awards for the best floats and units.

Secretary of State Jim Edgar got an award for having the most people in the parade — over 400. Edgar joked, "I think my office probably took the most vacation days."

Edgar supporters got some heckling and taunts from two disciples of Lyndon LaRouche, who had a table on the state fairgrounds where they were passing out literature and pushing their cause. LaRouche disciple Janice Hart won the Democratic nomination in March to oppose Edgar.

Many of the Republicans in the parade had dispersed over the fairgrounds by the time their rally started, however.

Democrats didn't attempt a parade this year, but did have a bigger turnout than the last few years at their rally. Comptroller Roland Burris probably won the award for turning out the most employees.

Gubernatorial candidate Adlai Stevenson again made an issue of Gov. James Thompson's "politicization" of the state fair, as he had when he ran against Thompson four years ago.

Stevenson, however, waxed nostalgically about the time "old Alben Barkley" then vice president of the United States, and other famous political orators came to the Illinois Fair.

Thompson was at the fair every day, giving away ribbons, signing bulls geared to "theme" days and meeting as many potential voters as possible, although it seems by now every resident of Illinois over the age of nine must have shook Big Jim's hand at least once.

Stevenson sniffs that other governors are busy reviewing legislation and, if he was the chief executive, he might show up at the fair once or twice but otherwise would be back at his desk.

Thompson this year has not one but two state fairs to use for a political showcase. The state now owns the former private Du Quoin State Fair set for Aug. 23-Sept. 1 and Thompson is expected to be there every day to meet thousands of more voters.

Madison County Democrats have their own state fair tradition over the past several years that involves skipping the fairgrounds entirely and holding a fund-raising party in a downtown Springfield hotel.

After holding the event in the Springfield Hilton for several years, they moved it last week across the street to the new Renaissance Renaissance Hotel, a posh establishment that ironically is operated by a prominent Republican power broker and fund-raiser, William Cellini.

Madison County Democrats turned out in force this year and all of the statewide candidates except U.S. Sen. Alan Dixon, who was in Washington, showed up to praise the county for "delivering" votes for Democratic candidates.

They also repeated the "punch three" message, in which they are asking Democrats to first vote the straight party ticket and then punch Stevenson for governor and Jane Spigler for secretary of state on the Illinois Solidarity Party ticket.

Burris has a variation on the message. In a rousing cheerleader style, he gets Democrats to chant "boom" for each of the three punches. Spigler introduced herself as "boom number three" to the Madison County Democrats.

County Chairman Mac Warfield insisted the "boom" be turning for Democrats after the earlier problems over the LaRouche supporters who won Democratic places on the Nov. 4 ballot in the March primary.

Warfield also said he believed many union members in Madison County would vote for Stevenson, even though the AFL-CIO and some individual unions have made unprecedented endorsements of Thompson.

"I was a steelworker for 32 years and I've talked to many steelworkers who said they're going to support Adlai. I think he'll get a lot of union voters," Warfield said.

State Central Committee Chairman Vince Demuzio and Stevenson himself also insist "rank and file" union members will vote for Stevenson.

State AFL-CIO President Robert Gibson was at the Democrats' rally at the fairgrounds after earlier joining Thompson in a ceremony dedicating a new AFL-CIO pavilion built on the fairgrounds.

"All I know is we had a meeting where people representing every area of the state and every union voted 68 percent to endorse Jim Thompson," Gibson responded when asked about the claim that the endorsement of a Republican governor did not represent the "rank and file."

Gibson said he considered himself a Democrat as did 7 out of 10 union members but "labor had to reaffirm the principle that we are not tied to one political party."

He said the AFL-CIO and its political action committee will still put a priority this year on electing Democrats to the legislature and Congress.

Gibson said he had been to every Democrat Day at the state fair since 1960.

He was greeted at the state fair rally by Gene Callahan, Sen. Alan Dixon's top aide. Callahan was wearing a paper "Adlai" hat and Gibson joked that Callahan would look handsome without the hat.

A former Granite Citian, Gibson has also been introduced as a VIP during the fair rally in past recent years. He was not this year.

Gibson also was conspicuously absent from the Madison County function later; he has regularly attended in the past.

AFL-CIO legislative director Rich Walsh was there and said Gibson wasn't present only because he had to attend a meeting.

Other sources indicated Gibson had commented the night before he didn't think the Madison County Democrats were going to have their Springfield event this year and he hadn't been specifically invited.

The AFL-CIO did buy a table of tickets at the Madison County reception, however.

Koehler pleased by Reagan's support

"I need someone like Judy Koehler that I can count on in the Senate, because she's a fighter for Illinois and a fighter for America," said President Ronald Reagan at the Rosemont Exposition Center on Aug. 12. He arrived in Chicago following a visit to the Illinois State Fair, where he made a major agriculture policy address.

At Rosemont, he hosted a private fund-raising reception for Koehler. "This is an honor for me and for all of Illinois," the Republican U.S. Senate nominee, State Rep. Judy Koehler, told President Reagan as she greeted the arrival of Air Force One at O'Hare International Airport.

Koehler was joined in welcoming the president by the honorary chairman of her campaign, Chicago business leader John Swearingin, chairman and chief executive of Continental Illinois Bank, and William Smithburg, chairman of the board of Quaker Oats and chairman of the Illinois Republican Party finance committee.

Riding with the President from the airport to the Expo Center, Koehler once again received a pledge of support for her candidacy from President Reagan.

"The President assured me again, as he did at the White House recently, that he knows we can win in Illinois. He is quite taken with my race and looks forward to his boyhood state providing the difference in maintaining a Republican majority in the U.S. Senate."

Reagan said, "I need a gutsy, determined fighter like Judy Koehler supporting me in the Senate. If we're going to keep America on track in the future, it's vital that we keep Republican control of the Senate."

"Now I know the pundits say Judy is the underdog in this race, but I've never put too much stock in what the pundits say. So Judy, from on underdog to another, just hang around here and let's see what happens. Forget the pundits; it's the people who count," the President continued.

"The President's visit at this early stage of the campaign will provide us with the momentum we need to reclaim Everett Dirksen's seat in the Senate for the Republican Party," Koehler said.

"The President knows he can depend on Judy Koehler to support the Reagan Revolution. He knows that I represent the same principles he has supported, less taxation, less spending and less intrusion by government into our private lives. I am proud that Ronald Reagan is here in Illinois to express his support for me."

New firehouse for state fair

A new $750,000 firehouse and training facility will be built on the grounds of the Illinois State Fair.

"Each year the State Fair gets bigger and bigger. The 1986 edition is both. This new facility will provide the modern protection the Illinois State Fair and those who attend it deserve," Gov. James R. Thompson said.

"In addition, it will give future and present members of the Springfield Fire Department the opportunity to practice their response to the life-threatening dangers they face daily," he said.

The 9,000-square-foot, one-story facility will replace a structure built in 1938 and will house a regular Springfield firefighting crew of four plus a captain and two fire trucks.

During the 10-day annual fair, a crew as large as eight can be housed in the new facility, said Gary Skoen, executive director of the Capital Development Board.

The State Fair Security Office also will be stationed in the building, which will be located on the east side of the fairgrounds just south of Gate 3.

Accompanying the firehouse will be a fire training tower to be used for structural firefighting training and other training methods.

Construction will begin in September and it will be completed in time for the 1987 fair.

Ryan leads lieutenant governors

Lieutenant Governor George H. Ryan was unanimously selected as the 1987 28 chairman-elect of the National Conference of Lieutenant Governors at the conclusion of the group's 25th annual meeting Aug. 14 in Santa Fe, N.M.

Republican and Democratic lieutenant governors alternate chairmanships of the NCLG. Ryan was chosen from among the 14 Republican members of the 55-member NCLG, which includes five island jurisdictions.

The outgoing chairman, John M. Mutz (R-Indiana), said, "George Ryan has been a very active and innovative member of our conference since joining us in 1983. I am pleased a fellow Midwesterner has been named chairman-elect. Ryan will succeed Winston Bryant (D-Arkansas) at the end of the 1987 NCLG meeting in Basin Harbor, VT, and will preside over the NCLG meetings in Washington, D.C., and Minnesota.

Since 1983, Ryan has chaired the NCLG's Task Force on Substance Abuse Prevention. The task force compiled a 160-page directory of prevention programs in the 50 states as the first step in a communications network established by the group. On behalf of the task force, he has testified before Congressional committees on substance abuse prevention, and appeared before national organizations as a keynote speaker. Ryan has also been Midwest regional chairman of the NCLG for the past two years and has served as chairman of the group's Republican Caucus.

Towing pros will convene, compete

New Illinois state laws regulating wrecker operators are among the topics up for discussion at the Professional Towing and Recovery Operators of Illinois (PTROI) as they gather Aug. 21-24 in Overton for their sixth annual convention and rodeo.

Over 500 members, non-members and out-of-state towers around the country are expected at the association trade show and exhibition of wreckers, towing and equipment, and driving competition held at Holiday Inn Conference Resort.

Last year, Illinois tow truck operators divided over legislation sought by the association to professionalize the industry, many fearing increased government regulations would either raise the cost of towing business or enable larger operators to dominate. The new laws took effect Jan. 1 of the year.

"There has been a lot of misunderstanding by those towers used to more 'informal' methods of doing business," said the PTROI president, Francis Gray, of Northlake. "Our convention seminars are designed to address these fears, and to help clarify the new laws."

State officials from the Illinois Commerce Commission's Transportation Division, Secretary of State's office and Illinois Department of Transportation will be among the featured speakers.

Also at the convention are a series of driving contests over an obstacle course for light, medium and heavy-duty wreckers. Drivers compete for $1,000 in cash awards and the right to represent Illinois in national competition.

Also featured are tractor-trailer back-up contests, and a flat-bed truck driving event. Lady towers get in the act, competing in their own "power puff" version of these events.

The public is invited to these events, which start at 10 a.m. Saturday and continue until 5 p.m. in the Holiday Inn parking lot.

SUIE accused of illegally denying 25 pay increases

An education union claims Southern Illinois University at Edwardsville (SIUE) illegally denied raises to employees. Its Child Development program and changed their job descriptions.

The Illinois Education Association-NEA filed an unfair labor practice charge this week with the Illinois Educational Labor Relations Board.

The union says about 25 employees in the program, on SIUE's East St. Louis campus, were denied 6 percent raises granted to other university employees in July.

The complaint said the university also changed the employees' job conditions, creating "more onerous and burdensome working conditions."

The Child Development program provides child care. Its workers are considered professional staff employees. Other professional staff employees include coaches and academic advisors.

The union claims the changes were illegal because professional staff employees who were denied raises have a union election in a "protected period" under the law. Unilateral employment changes without employee consent are prohibited, which ends after an election is held.

Ben Quillian, head of the SIUE personnel department, said the Child Development program is funded by a grant from the state Department of Children and Family Services.

He said the employees did not receive the raise because grant funding was not increased.

"I think the unfair labor practices charge is wholly without substance," Quillian said. "This type of action was totally a fiscal action."

But Marcus Albrecht of the IEA said a raise of up to 6 percent was approved for all university employees. Part of the raise is based on merit.

"They are subject to the raise," Albrecht said of the employees. "These are some of the lowest-paid employees that work for the university and they do some of the most important work," he said.

Quillian said he was not sure that job descriptions were changed. But he said job descriptions often are changed by supervisors as the needs of the university change.

Johnetta Haley, director of SIUE's East St. Louis Center, said she sees a trend toward making job descriptions specific. "I think the descriptions correspond with what child care workers are required to do in the state of Illinois," she said.

Last month, the Educational Labor Relations Board issued a complaint against SIUE for allegedly harassing Child Development employees. The IEA had accused the university of harassing the employees by telling them the length of their contracts might be shortened.

Progress made on head injuries

The Department of Defense (DOD) has honored Henry G. Schwartz, M.D., for his help in directing the Vietnam Head Injury Study, the most comprehensive study ever conducted of penetrating head injuries.

Schwartz is August A. Busch Jr. professor emeritus of neurological surgery at Washington University School of Medicine in St. Louis. He received a certificate of appreciation for serving as one of five members of a directorate that oversees the study of veterans with combat-associated head wounds.

For the study, which began in 1981 and is continuing, 520 brain-injured veterans and 85 uninjured veterans were sent to the Walter Reed Hospital for an extensive, one-week re-evaluation.

Analysis of the data collected from the study has demonstrated improved neurosurgical and medical management of brain injuries, and has added to knowledge of how brain injuries affect thinking, memory and mood.

He attributes the success of the study to the excellent medical records maintained by the DOD and the Veterans Administration. "Those records, compiled as the Vietnam Head Injury Study registry, include detailed information on 1,221 veterans who survived penetrating brain wounds from shrapnel or bullets between 1967 and 1970. All veterans listed in the registry were invited to participate in the study; almost half agreed to be re-evaluated."

Each participant received a detailed neurological examination; computerized tomographic brain scans; neuropsychological, behavioral, and speech and language batteries; physical rehabilitation; and motor performance tests; hearing tests; EEG and brain evoked potentials testing; and extensive interviews on family and social adjustment.

A number of papers have been published on study findings, including several on epilepsy, considered one of the most severe consequences of brain injury.

Also, study results have settled an important technical neurosurgical issue: whether to remove retained bone fragments that may have been missed at the original operation.

Standard procedure had been to remove bone fragments, but the study indicates that repeat operations may not be warranted in the asymptomatic case, and that further surgery may be detrimental.

Analysis of the data is still ongoing. Researchers now are examining cognitive disability, social adjustment, mood, intelligence and other psychometric variables.

Schwartz, as neurosurgical consultant to the U.S. surgeon general during the Vietnam War, traveled to Vietnam to observe neurosurgery in the field. During World War II, he went to Africa as assistant chief of the service of the U.S. General Hospital, the medical unit affiliated with Washington University and Barnes Hospital that went on to serve in Italy and France.

While in Africa, Schwartz and his staff developed a procedure for handling wounds of the head and neck, which became standard for the military. He received the Legion of Merit in 1945 for his service to the Army.

Schwartz came to Washington U. in 1936 as a fellow in neurological surgery. He became professor and head of the department in 1946, and in 1950 was named professor of neurological surgery. He stepped down as department head in 1974, and in 1984 received emeritus status.

He was chief of the neurosurgery section of Barnes and Allied hospitals from 1946-74, was acting chief of surgery from 1967-69, and continues to serve on the staffs of Barnes, Children's and Jewish hospitals at Washington University Medical Center.

INFANT FOOT CARE

By Steve Burdge, R. Ph.

During an infant's first 12 months, rapid growth and softness of his feet provide a chance for foot ailments to develop. In bed, do not tuck the covers in binding the baby's feet. Allow the child some time every day to kick without any sheets or covers on in order to exercise and strengthen his legs and feet. By changing the baby's position during the day, excessive strain on his legs is eliminated.

Artists may apply for funds

The Illinois Arts Council Artists-in-Education (AIE) program has announced a new artists' deadline: 1987-88 applications must be postmarked by Sept. 10, 1986. Artists' applications will be reviewed by discipline juries in October. Approved artists can then be included in the artists' directory to be distributed to potential '87-'88 program sponsors.

The AIE program, funded by both the Illinois General Assembly and the National Endowment for the Arts, awards competitive grants to schools and non-profit community organizations to enable hosting individual artist or company residencies in dance, literature, music, theater or visual art, from one week to eight months.

For more information, Richard Gage, AIE program coordinator, can be contacted at the Illinois Arts Council, State of Illinois Center, Suite 10-500, 100 W. Randolph St., Chicago, Ill., 60601 (phone 1-312-917-6750).

Summertime football: No pain, no gain

I think I knew why I never played high school football. Now, I'm sure I made the right decision.

In the first place, I never had any reason to think I would be that good at it. Although I was always one of the taller kids in my age group, I was also one of the skinnier ones. The offensive and defensive line coaches at Alton High School certainly weren't begging me to suit up.

And, to my eternal regret, I just never have been a fast runner. If there was one thing I wish I could do athletically that I can't, it's run well. So that pretty much ruled out the offensive or defensive backfield. And I never had the time or patience to learn to punt or placekick, although that's another thing I wish I could do.

Of course, every kid who loves football growing up wants to be the quarterback. But my hands were never that large, and I couldn't ever get the grip to really wing it far downfield. I've turned into a fairly respectable softball player, with a pretty good glove at first base, so I'm not completely hopeless. But football is still

Sports Comment
By Dave Whaley

the one sport I wish I could be good at — at any position. My latest dream is to be a fearsome blitzing linebacker in the Lawrence Taylor/Andre Tippett class. Some dream, huh? Either that or a punk quarterback with a headband and ever-present sunglasses. (Just kidding.) But back to the real reason I never played. One of the first things I learned about high school football (and the colleges and pros, for that matter) was that although the games are played in the brisk fall and even the bitterly cold winter, the first practices are held in August, and even July for the pros.

Now, I don't mind cold weather. In fact, I love it. I don't understand people in the northern United States who go to Florida for the winter. They miss all the fun. I figure there's always one more layer of clothing you can put on to keep warm.

But the heat of summer...I don't mind it, but I prefer the cold. There are times, unless you're lucky enough to be in an air-conditioned arena, when you can't do enough to stay cool. There's only so many clothes you can take off, unless you're a ballgirl for the Chicago Cubs.

So when I learned the high school teams start practice in August, I imagined the horrors of pounding blocking sleds and doing sit-ups with coaches hollering at you while the temperature shot up towards 100 degrees. And you're often wearing a helmet and several pounds of padding.

It's not much fun. The players certainly know it, and the coaches do too. But they also know it's a necessary evil. The season starts in early September, so you have to start in the heat. And the early games will be played in hot weather, so they have to get used to it.

Actually, it hasn't been too bad this year. After a brutally hot July, the weather here has moderated somewhat. Both Ron Yates at Granite City and Don Smith at Madison have scheduled early morning and late afternoon practices for the first week, although Yates added a noon practice.

The Warriors are out at 6 a.m., noon and 6 p.m., while the Trojans are out from 9 a.m. to 11 a.m. and again from 4 p.m. to 6 p.m. But even the noon practices this week have been completed with the mercury barely getting above 80 degrees.

Yates and Smith both said the cooler weather is allowing them to get more work done early, as they feel no pressure about working the players too hard too early in the heat.

"I thought it would really be tough after the weather we had in July," Smith said Wednesday. "But it's been pretty nice. Our afternoon practices have been done under the clouds a couple of days."

But working out in this surprisingly fair weather must be like waiting for the other shoe to drop. As nice as it is this week, it could be that bad next week. And even 80-degree weather doesn't seem that nice after about an hour and a half of hard work.

I have had an idea for a long time about what I would do the first time I went out to football practice in the 100-degree heat. I would first stop at one of the fast-food restaurants and pick up a large soda, with plenty of ice. Then I would go to the practice field and stand where the players could see me and suck loudly on the straw, enjoying every drop of that cold beverage. Then I would chew on the ice a little.

Too cruel? I guess it is, and besides, some of those guys are rather large and they might decide to sack the sportswriter instead of the quarterback.

In the meantime, keep up the hard work, men.

The Hogans

Back for one more year at GCHS

By Gregg Ochoa
Executive Sports Editor

Please fasten your seat belts. Air Hogan is ready for takeoff.

If this is August, it must be football season. The fall is just another sports chapter for Tim and Jamie Hogan, both seniors at Granite City High School.

Tim, the quarterback, and Jamie, the split end, will help guide the Warrior offense this year. Both hope to build on last year's football success. Granite City won its last three games and finished at a very respectable 4-4.

Air Hogan was one of the most successful passing combinations in the area last year. They combined for 460 yards on offense as Tim completed 24 passes to his favorite receiver.

"A lot of people say I just throw to Jamie and that I should look off more and try to hit the other receivers," said Tim. "Maybe that's true, but I'm used to his moves, and a lot of the time a quarterback will throw to whoever will make him look good. Jamie will catch anything."

The duo, who might spend several hours a week running patterns to stay sharp, know each other's moves like a shadow.

"We can both look at the defense and see the right spot in the coverage," explained Jamie.

"It definitely makes a difference," said Tim. "I know if I throw it, Jamie's most likely going to get it."

Jamie has been a starter since his sophomore year, when he teamed with Eric Graves to form a formidable passing duo. He saw some action that year before being sidelined with a sprained ankle.

"Having played on the varity before has given me a lot of confidence," Jamie said. That confidence translated into consistency.

As a junior, Jamie was named to the All-Southwestern Conference first team. He averaged 19.2 yards a catch and scored six touchdowns. His 24 receptions were third in the area and his 460 yards were second best.

A Hogan trademark is his great hands. He dropped very few passes last year.

"I know I dropped one against Cahokia and another against Alton," Jamie said. "That's two too many."

Jamie takes pride in his pass catching, and works hard at keeping his coordination sharp. When they were sophomores, both Hogans attended a football camp at the University of Illinois. It was there that Jamie picked up a drill to hone his pass-catching abilities.

It's football's version of "burn ball."

"I have one of the guys throw the ball real hard at me from close range, to see if they can throw it by me," he said.

Added Tim, "They throw it real hard, but they can't get it past him."

"Everybody (teammates) makes a big deal out of it, but it's not," Jamie said, downplaying the drill. "It's a matter of concentration. I feel if they throw the ball your way, you should catch it."

Jamie has set some personal goals, like increasing his receiving yards and his yards per catch. But those are statistics that he hopes will come as the team does well.

"I don't try to think about scoring touchdowns," Jamie

DeRousse steady for GC kickers

By Gregg Ochoa
Executive Sports Editor

Dave DeRousse was going through the drills the other day at the Warriors' first soccer practice.

He looked like everyone else on the field. Dressed in shorts and a T-shirt, DeRousse practiced his foot skills, dribbling the ball.

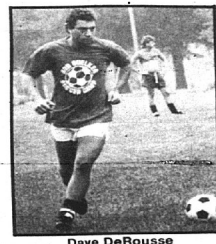

You get the feeling that DeRousse has always been a Warrior. He did everything with precision, so much so, that he blended into the position of right wingback for the last two seasons.

DeRousse is one of several seniors returning at Granite City High School. He hopes to lead the Warriors into battle to regain their supremacy in the Metro East area.

Traditionally, a powerhouse, DeRousse has had his fill of the bitter taste of defeat. In his sophomore year, Granite City lost to Alton 1-0 in the sectional finals. Then, last year, the Warriors were stunned by Marquette 1-0 in the regional final.

DeRousse would like nothing more than to turn it all around.

"I would like to for us to win a state championship," he said.

Dave DeRousse

"That's my major goal." DeRousse is taking a positive approach to the season, the last of his high school career.

"I think we are going to be pretty good," he said. "We have a lot of good players out for the team." The Warriors lost several players to graduation, including all-stars Scott Bision and Terry Dutko, but return 11 players who saw a lot of varsity action last year.

As usual, the first day of practice produced several new faces. More than 100 players reported on.

Cougars get 1st win on Jamaican junket

The SIUE soccer team, and new coach Ed Hunko, scored its first win Tuesday, defeating the British Football Club 1-0 in an exhibition match in Jamaica.

Jim Jackson headed in a crossing pass from Steve Stocker 14 minutes into the game for the only goal. The Cougars are now 1-0-1 on their exhibition tour. SIUE will close out the trip today with a match against the Seabra Football Club.

Tuesday's was marred by several fan outbursts, which caused officials to end the game 10 minutes early.

After the annual Alumni Game on Aug. 28 and another exhibition game against the Blackpool Club of England on Aug. 30, the Cougars will open the season for keeps at MacMurray College on Sept. 2.

SIUE will be looking to return to past glory. The goal is a post season bid, which SIUE has missed the past three years.

Defense will be a Cougar strong suit. All-America Steve Tritschuh of Granite City heads the list of returnees.

The Cougars will also feature seniors on both ends of the field, with an all-senior front line and a senior goalkeeper.

Last year's leading scorer, John Stone, will be paired with Stocker

Gundaker's ride snaps Wallace winning streak

By Joe Senter
Correspondent

GRANITE CITY — Kevin Gundaker won both ends of the 25-lap feature events at the Tri-City Speedway. In the process, Gundaker broke Mike Wallace's winning streak. Wallace had won 10 straight features.

The weekend program at Tri-City finished up at 2 a.m. on Sunday.

In the first feature, Gundaker grabbed the lead after the first lap and held off a hard charging Wallace. Terry Messinger was second and Wallace took third. Bill Shaw was fourth.

Gundaker, Mike Callaway and Messinger took the heat race. Drivers in the second 25-lap feature started in the reverse order they had finished in the first race.

Ray Guss was the early leader. Gundaker, starting dead last, worked his way through the pack and was in second place after four laps. Guss led until Lap No. 20 when his engine failed.

Gundaker took over the lead and held on to for the win. For his efforts, Gundaker pocketed $2,000 for the feature wins and an extra $300 "bounty" for stopping Wallace's win streak.

Ron Finner was second and Wallace finished third again. In all, 31 Late Model cars ran.

Loi Terry Jr. won the Super Modified feature, followed by Randy Durbin, Ron Taylor and Rod Bailey. Taylor and Terry took the heat races. Twenty modifieds entered the race.

Gary Archambault won the Sportsman's Car feature, he was followed by Bill Scott, Steve Quenterhouse and Bob Stanton. Archambault and Stanton won the heat races.

Bill Patton won the Street Stock feature. Don McElroy was second.

A record 121 cars were on hand and a total purse of $15,000 was paid out.

RACING NOTES: The Aug. 30 USAC Sprint Car Race originally scheduled has been replaced by UMP Late Model Stock cars, Super Modifieds, Sportsman's and Street Stock with an open competition in the Super Modifieds and Street Stocks. Saturday, Sept. 5 will be Elvis Doolin Day. Doolin is the longtime owner and operator of Tri-City Speedway. The event will be to honor Doolin's birthday.

HITTING THE SLEDs: Linemen for the Madison Trojans hit blocking sleds during practice Wednesday morning, under the watchful eyes of assistant coaches Marcus Spraggins and Mark Giles.

was our leading scorer last year, with seven touchdowns and 10 extra points. And we've got half of our line back. Players like Ted Kemp, Ricky Ball and Stephen Boyd will help a lot."

The disappointment of last year has not been forgotten. "We've mentioned it a few times at practice," Smith said. "We lost two games by only 10 points. We missed out on the playoffs, but going undefeated in the regular season would have been great."

The Trojans will put some miles in this year, traveling to Vandavia for the season opener Sept. 5. They also make trips to Flora and Hardin (Calhoun) late in the year. The home opener is Sept. 12 against Columbia. Other home games include Blue Creek Central (Sept. 26), Dupe (Oct. 3) and Freeburg (Oct. 17). They also make trips to Waterloo and East St. Louis (Assumption).

Gundaker, Mike Callaway and Messinger took the heat race. Drivers in the second 25-lap feature started in the reverse order they had finished in the first race.

Cheerleaders advance

THE GRANITE CITY HIGH SCHOOL varsity soccer cheerleaders have qualified to advance to the International Open Cheerleading Championships to be held in Nashville, Tenn., on Dec. 29-30. They received this honor by being selected as a Grand Champion Finalist at the International Cheerleading Foundation's summer camp held Aug. 10-13 at Eastern Illinois University in Charleston. Over 5,000 cheerleaders representing 500 schools will be eligible to participate at Nashville. Judges from all over the nation will decide division winners based on spirit, precision, dance, creativity and overall performance. Winners will receive awards from the ICF, including trophies, uniforms and cheerleader equipment. Squad members are, front row from left, Jennifer Carnahan, Lori Swigart, Shannon Gauen and Rebecca Papa; back row from left, Kim Myracle (co-captain), Jenna Epperson, Andrea Jones, Missy McAmish and Susan Konkovich (co-captain).

● Cougars

and Michael Brown. The goalkeeper will be Mike England, who posted six shutouts and allowed just 10 goals in the Cougars' final games.

Huneker, however, will still have some questions to be answered at midfield as several newcomers are vying for starting positions.

The following is rundown of the Cougars, position by position:

Forward

Three seniors, including two of last year's top scorers highlight the frontline.

Stone returns. He scored 14 goals and six assists last year. Steve Stocker, who played for Huneker at Lewis and Clark Community College, scored five goals and had nine assists. Mike Brown has been moved to forward after playing midfield last year, where he scored four goals and added two assists.

Stone's 14 goals tied him with Bill Stallings' 1984 mark for most goals scored by a Cougar player since Don Elvert scored 22 in 1979.

Midfield

This will be the position that will see several lineup changes. Tim Ambling will probably be a starter, but the other positions are still uncertain. Among the candidates are Carl Hausman, Jim Applebaum and freshman Kevin Hundelt, selected as Gatorade's High School Player of the Year.

Backs

Huneker talks in flowing terms of his backs.

"I feel that we can stop the opposition in the air, on the ground and with speed," Huneker said. "Having Steve Trittschuh and John Gates in the middle of our defense gives us one of the best backfield combinations in the country."

Gates collected six goals last year. Trittschuh moved into 29th place on the all-time SIU scoring list with four goals last year. He also became the 13th player in SIU history to gain All-America

State plans drug abuse center in region

The Department of Alcoholism and Substance Abuse plans to develop residential alcoholism and substance abuse services in the Metro East area with Gateway Foundation Inc. This is the result of an 18-month planning effort on the part of the department's regional staff and local service providers and an "RFP" (Request for Proposal) that was offered in the spring of this year.

The new facility, to be built by Gateway Foundation, will include 10 detoxification, 20 rehabilitation and 10 halfway house beds for alcohol and substance abusing adult males and females.

This facility will primarily serve Madison, St. Clair, Monroe and Randolph counties. Possible locations for the facility, accessible to the major portion of the population, are being reviewed at this time.

"The program will include a professional advisory council to assist the facility director with program planning and linkage of the clients to the other community-based alcohol and substance abuse treatment providers," according to William Atkins, director of the Department of Alcoholism and Substance Abuse. The target date for service implementation is the spring of 1987. Some outpatient and purchased residential rehabilitation services will be available sooner as specific arrangements can be negotiated.

Additional information can be obtained by contacting the director's office in Springfield, 1-217-785-9067, or Ben Edwards at the Region 4 office in Mr. Vernon, 1-242-4840.

Custom calling services now offered

Eligible Illinois Bell customers now have an opportunity to order selected optional services from the company without having to pay the usual connection charge.

For a limited time, eligible customers can order one or more optional services — such as Custom Calling services, Line-Backer or Touch-Tone service — and save the usual one-time connection charge of up to $36 for business customers or $30 for residence customers, as a result of the settlement of a class-action suit on the company's inside Wire Maintenance service.

Customers who order now get the benefit of optional calling services and get their hook-up for free," said Jack Pepping, Illinois Bell district manager.

The one-time offer is good until June 23, 1987. Though there will be no connection charges, monthly rates will apply. Optional services which are available are: Call Waiting, $3 per month; Call Forwarding, Three-Way Calling and Speed Calling, $2.50 per month; Touch-Tone, 73 cents per month; Line-Backer Pak, $2.25 per month; and Line-Backer Plus-Pak, $3.25 per month.

Customers not selecting an optional service can cancel their participation in the Inside Wire Maintenance Plan and share in a claim fund set up as part of the settlement.

Customers who elect to cancel the plan will receive a credit of up to $7.50, depending on the number of people who select this option, and may not resume participation for six months, Pepping said. Customers who cancel the plan will have to pay a service charge to resume participation.

Under the Inside Wire Maintenance service, which the company began in 1982, customers who wanted to maintain their own wiring were not required to pay monthly maintenance fee of 39 cents for residence customers or 44 cents for business customers. Customers were asked to notify the company if they no longer wanted to pay the monthly maintenance charge.

In August 1982, Amy Franklin initiated a class-action suit against Illinois Bell. She charges that the method of having customers notify the company of their preference not to subscribe was an "illegal negative option."

In December 1985, an out-of-court settlement was reached with the plaintiffs, which is why the company is now waiving connect charges for selected optional services or offering one-time credit to eligible customers.

"Since August 1982, nearly 100,000 customers under the plan have had repairs to their wiring at no additional cost," Pepping said. "If customers choose to discontinue the plan, they will be responsible for maintaining their own inside wiring."

Under terms of the settlement, customers who do not choose either option will receive a credit of $1 or more upon distribution of a residual fund in July 1987.

In the next two months, eligible Illinois Bell customers are being notified as to options available to them and are being asked to notify the company of their selection by a ballot enclosed in the mailing.

Customers who have questions or would like additional information can call 1-800-642-9473.

DREW KARANDJEFF

Q. A friend of mine recently told me that she is in the process of obtaining credit in her own name, even though she is married, and she and her husband have several bank credit cards and retail cards. When I asked why, she simply said she thought it was a good idea "if and when." Is this a good idea, and could you go into the "ifs and whens" in a little more detail than my friend did?

A. The "if and when" your friend spoke of is probably the event of her husband's death or of divorce and, yes, it is a good idea for a woman to establish her own credit, even though happily married. If the credit cards they now carry are set up as most are, they are in her husband's name. This is fine until death or divorce does occur. Many credit experts encourage women to establish their own credit accounts, and to use those accounts enough to keep them active. Those same experts agree that when applying for credit, you should take the time to fill out credit applications accurately, and to list references accurately.

Maxine Duniphtin

Connie Baugh, 18 Moorland Drive, celebrated her 16th birthday Aug. 15. Her father, Bill Baugh, gave her a trip to Tampa, Fla., as a birthday gift, and her mother accompanied her on the trip.

They visited Mrs. Baugh's brother, Mack Kidd, in Tampa and then visited Cape Canaveral and Cocoa Beach before returning home this weekend by plane.

The flight to Florida was a new experience for both of them. Mrs. Baugh's father made the return trip with her and Connie. He had been visiting his son, Mack Kidd, in Tampa for the past four weeks and makes his home here.

Mr. and Mrs. David (Lecher) Hartwick, 636 Chouteau Ave., are the parents of a 7-pound 7-ounce boy. He has been named Zackory and arrived July 30. He has one sister, Vanessa, one and a half years old. Grandparents are Don and June Hartwick, 624 Ashland Ave., Mitchell.

Mrs. Pearl Turner, Mrs. Fern Geiselman and Mr. and Mrs. Harold Cane were members of a group who went on a land, sea and air tour to Nashville, Tenn., last week.

Included were a boat trip down the Cumberland River on the Andrew Jackson, a tour of Opryland and attendance at the Grand Ole Opry. The third day was spent visiting the Roy Acuff and Barbara Mandrell museums and the Andrew Jackson home and estate. On the final day, they viewed homes of some of the Nashville stars before returning here that evening.

The Rev. Willard Myers, 541 Margaret Ave., who has been in the John Cochran Veterans Hospital for the past six weeks, is improving and is expected to be released this week.

Mrs. Bernice Myers retired June 36 as a teacher at the Promise Center in East St. Louis, where she taught the severe, profound and or- thopedically handicapped for eight years.

She completed her education and began her career in her later years after raising her children to adulthood.

Mrs. Ernest (Brenda) Baker and sons, Lee and Brent, just returned from a week's vacation in Paragould, Ark., where they visited her mother, other relatives, and friends. She visited a sister in Lynn, Ark., and Lee and Brent swam in the Renolds Park pool.

Her brother, Larry Young, accompanied her home.

Mrs. and Mrs. Clifford Dunham and son, Conrad, 633 Chouteau Ave., motored to Puxico, Mo. over the weekend to attend the Puxico homecoming. Also attending from this area were Mr. and Mrs. Lowell Warren, Mr. and Mrs. Vernon Ryan, Mr. and Mrs. David Wolfe and family, and Mr. and Mrs. Pete Haddock.

Puxico is a small town of 800 residents but each year at homecoming time it is host to several thousand people.

THE LAW AND YOU

BY RICK REED
Attorney At Law

If you are involved in an automobile accident with another vehicle, it may become important to determine who was at fault. Illinois is a comparative negligence state, and damages for property loss and bodily injury will be awarded based on the amount of negligence attributed to each driver. How does one determine which driver is at fault in a particular accident?

In one recent case, an Illinois driver was driving on an interstate when he came upon a dog in the middle of the highway. The driver stopped suddenly so as not to strike the animal, and he immediately was struck from behind by another vehicle. The question arose as to whether the driver who stopped suddenly was at fault or whether the driver who collided with him was negligent.

In most cases where one driver collides with another car from the rear, the driver of the car which rear-ended the other will be found to be primarily responsible. This is because a driver has a duty to maintain proper control of his car and because he is supposed to maintain sufficient distance between his vehicle and another to avoid a collision. However, various Illinois cases have found that a driver who stops suddenly can also be found to be liable for the accident in these situations. In the case referred to in this article, the insurance companies determined between themselves that the driver who stopped suddenly was 50% at fault and the driver who collided with him was 50% at fault.

Why is it important in a particular case how liability is apportioned between the parties? In our example, if the driver who stopped suddenly was found to be 50% at fault, he would only recover one half of the damages to his vehicle from the driver who collided with him. In addition, if he sustained bodily injury, he would likewise only be able to recover one half of his damages in this particular situation.

There are certain procedures which a driver should follow in light of these considerations. In the first place, a driver should never admit fault at an accident scene. A driver should also not move his vehicle subsequent to the time of an accident. This will allow the police officer to get a better idea as to how the accident occurred. Finally, a driver should attempt to get the names and addresses of any witnesses to an accident.

7 area literacy programs funded

Secretary of State and State Librarian Jim Edgar has announced that seven literacy programs in the Metro East area will receive funding from his office through a special literacy grant program created last year.

"An estimated five million adults in Illinois live with the handicap of functional illiteracy," said Edgar, who chairs the Illinois Literacy Council.

"Having failed to reap the rewards of formal education as children, they are reluctant to return to the classroom setting as adults. Coming to their aid are a growing number of volunteer tutoring programs."

A total of 85 local and regional literacy programs in Illinois will receive nearly $4 million this fiscal year to support local services for adults who cannot read.

This is the second year money has been appropriated by the Illinois General Assembly for distribution to a broad range of literacy programs, including adult education agencies, libraries, volunteer programs, community organizations and coalitions of such groups.

The local area will receive a total of more than $313,000 in literacy funds. The money will support volunteer tutoring programs and other literacy services coordinated by five educational institutions and two library systems.

The activities of these seven grant recipients cover all or parts of 12 counties and are directly coordinated with 21 community agencies including the St. Clair County Jail, the East St. Louis Housing Authority and 12 public libraries, among them Granite City.

Grant recipients are Belleville Area College, Regional Superintendent of Schools for Monroe and Randolph Counties (Chester), State Community College (East St. Louis), Lewis and Clark Community College (Godfrey), SIUE and the Lewis and Clark Library System (Edwardsville) and Kaskaskia Library System (Smithton).

An award of $57,307 to Belleville Area College will allow the literacy program to continue recruiting and training volunteer tutors to work with adult low-level readers at nine tutoring sites. With an overall goal of breaking the intergenerational cycle of illiteracy, the Belleville adult literacy program helps students teach their children to read by suggesting appropriate pre-reading activities.

Literacy programs from all across the state will be helped by a $62,040 grant to Monroe and Randolph counties. The money will support a computerized data and record-keeping system available to other interested programs.

More than $34,000 in funds provided to State Community College will help the East St. Louis program recruit and train enough volunteers to serve 200 students. Plans call for expansion from four to six tutoring sites. The program has acquired a computer for instruction and would like to purchase software to use with low-level readers.

Nearly $30,000 in funds to Southern Illinois University at Edwardsville will support a diagnostic prescriptive referral service for Southwestern Illinois literacy programs. This year, the project will include a research component aimed at providing a "disability profile" of adult disabled readers in Southwestern Illinois. A summary of the most frequently recommended instructional strategies will also be made available.

Funds provided to the Kaskaskia and Lewis and Clark library systems will support their volunteer tutoring programs and will allow both systems to purchase adult new-reader books and materials for tutors. Kaskaskia will channel part of its $4,536 allocation to the Metro East Literacy Council, while the Lewis and Clark system will use part of its $8,822 grant to buy materials which will be used in pre-kindergarten at-risk programs.

At Lewis and Clark College, a grant of $16,126 will support a comprehensive volunteer tutoring program serving 50 students.

New laws to protect children

A package of new laws signed Aug. 15 included administration proposals to strengthen laws protecting children from abduction, pornography or abuse as part of the KIDS Program - Kids in Illinois Deserve Safety.

"There is never a point when we've done enough to protect our children. Improving what already is the nation's best child protection law enforcement system is an ongoing process, one that is reflected in the legislation we presented last spring and part of which I'm pleased to sign today," Gov. James R. Thompson said.

"While we move to take additional steps to reduce the likelihood of a child being the victim of kidnapping, pornography or other abuse, we also must take a progressive approach toward the care of those who need special attention, such as homeless youths," he said.

Thompson signed the measures in conjunction with the 12th annual Department of Children and Family Services (DCFS) luncheon on the director's lawn at the Illinois State Fair, where it was Youth Day.

The package signed by the governor included:

- Senate Bill 2292, a three-part bill that extends privacy provisions already in place for juvenile offenders to the juvenile victims of sex crimes. It requires a person convicted two or more times for sexual assault crimes when the victim is 18 years old or younger to register with local law enforcement agencies on release from prison.

- It also calls for notification of schools and local birth certificate registrars when the Department of State Police receives a report of a missing Illinois child.

- Senate Bill 2293, which takes several steps:

- First, it requires commercial film operators to report child pornography when they discover it in film they have processed.

- Second, profits derived from child pornography activities will be seized from the offender, a step that goes beyond the current law of forfeiture of vehicles and equipment used in the commission of a child pornography offense.

- Third, the legislature in 1985 extended the statute of limitations for child pornography by three years to a total of six years. SB 2293 extends the statute of limitations for that and other child abuse crimes until the victim has reached his or her 21st birthday.

- Fourth, individuals in positions of trust or supervision of children will face longer prison sentences if they are convicted of using their jobs to sexually abuse a child. Any additional prison terms will be at the discretion of the sentencing judge, who can view this facet of a case as an aggravating factor to the crime.

- Finally, the crime of indecent solicitation of a child will carry stiffer penalties. SB 2293 makes it a Class A felony, which calls for a prison term of one to three years. Previous law made the crime a Class A misdemeanor with a prison term of less than a year.

- Senate Bill 2294, which makes it a felony to attempt to lure a child into a vehicle. The bill also balances child visitation rights between a parent who has custody of a child and a non-custodial parent. It makes it illegal for a parent with custody to interfere with the visitation rights of the non-custodial parent.

- All three bills are effective immediately.

- The governor also signed two other bills Friday that, among other legislative steps, are aimed at improving care for homeless youths.

- Approved by Thompson were:

- House Bill 3477, which establishes a DCFS Training Fund that in addition to providing training programs for foster care and adoptive care services, will enable DCFS to receive more federal matching dollars for similar training programs. It also clarifies the definition of a homeless youth, expands the scope of child welfare services and prevents the exclusion of homeless youths from participating in DCFS programs.

- HB 3477, which takes effect immediately, was sponsored by Representative Margaret Farwell of Northfield, and by Senators Marovitz, Bob Kustra of Des Plaines and Virginia Macdonald of Arlington Heights.

- Senate Bill 2196, legislation that includes expansion of the Chicago Regional Youth Planning Committee from 10 to 30 members. The Chicago panel is responsible for 30 local youth service systems, while others in Illinois have 10 members and handle no more than nine systems.

- Other portions of the bill clarify the definition of a juvenile detention home to mean a facility that provides for the safety, medical, educational, recreational, religious and other needs of youth.

- SB 2196 also says a minor can be held for more than 24 hours in a detention center, county jail or municipal lock-up only if the facility meets the definition of a juvenile detention home. Otherwise, the minor must be transferred to a qualified facility.

- Thompson and Kentucky Gov. Martha Wayne Collins were named co-chairmen of the National Campaign to Protect Our Children earlier this year.

- The year-long public education program will be conducted by the National Center for Missing and Exploited Children and coordinated from each state. Inspector General Jeremy Margolis coordinates Illinois' participation.

- "This bill has larger amount of funding" than Congress has ever approved for drug interdiction," Dixon said.

- The legislation totals $1.4 billion toward the effort, complementing an enforcement program just announced by the administration at the Mexican border.

- "This bill has larger amount of funding" than Congress has ever approved for drug interdiction," Dixon said.

Urges military role in fighting imports of drugs

Joining in a massive drug interdiction effort, U.S. Sen. Alan J. Dixon has co-sponsored legislation to authorize extensive use of Defense Department assistance and resources.

The bill, entitled the National Drug Interdiction Improvement Act of 1986, will result in new personnel, planes, helicopters, and radar systems and the upgrading of existing anti-drug equipment. It also calls for reorganization of the executive branch to end "turf wars" and interagency competition.

Dixon, a member of the Senate Caucus on International Narcotics Control, noted lack of coordination in drug enforcement efforts.

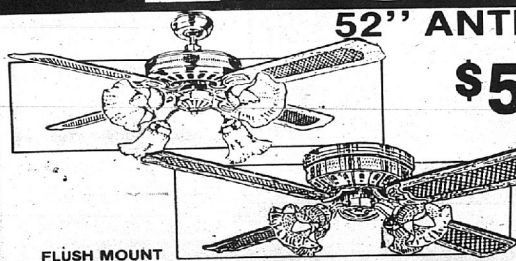

"If this nation is ever going to succeed in fighting the drug traffic coming into the U.S., we need enforcement — comprehensive enforcement," Dixon said.

The legislation totals $1.4 billion toward the effort, complementing an enforcement program just announced by the administration at the Mexican border.

"This bill has larger amount of funding" than Congress has ever approved for drug interdiction," Dixon said.

Progress made in ending school asbestos in state

While Illinois children have been taking a vacation from the three R's, the Illinois Department of Public Health has been working on a double A — asbestos abatement.

The department director, Dr. Bernard J. Turnock, said, "Since last May, 253 school buildings have been inspected for asbestos hazards. Nearly 3,000 samples of insulation have been collected and sent to department laboratories for analysis to determine whether they contain asbestos, a known cancer-causing agent."

"When the laboratory tests have been completed and the results analyzed, steps will be taken to remove the asbestos or eliminate the hazards wherever they may exist in the schools."

"In recent months, local school officials have initiated another 114 asbestos abatement projects. "During the coming school year, 1,600 other school buildings will be inspected by private contractors approved by the department. The schools to be inspected will be selected at random by computer."

"Eventually, all the state's 7,000 private and public school buildings will be inspected for asbestos materials and steps taken to remove or eliminate the hazards within four years."

"During the summer, the department tested licensed 1,200 asbestos workers and approved 35 contractors to perform asbestos abatement projects."

Legislators get fund boost for office expenses

An $8,000 a year boost in district office expense allowances for state legislators was approved by Gov. James Thompson Aug. 18.

The measure hikes the current $37,000 allowance for senators to $45,000 a year and the present $27,000 allowance for representatives to $35,000 a year.

The expense allowances can be used for such purposes as renting district office space, paying telephone and electric bills, buying furniture and equipment, hiring district staff, and printing and mailing newsletters.

The district office allowances were last previously increased in 1984 when they were boosted from $17,000 a year to the $37,000 and $27,000 levels.

The senators get larger allowances because their districts are twice as large as those of House members.

The increase will cost taxpayers over $1.4 million for all legislators.

The increase in the office allowance was not proposed until the last day of the legislative session on July 2, when it was quietly slipped into a joint House-Senate conference committee at the request of Illinois Senate leaders.

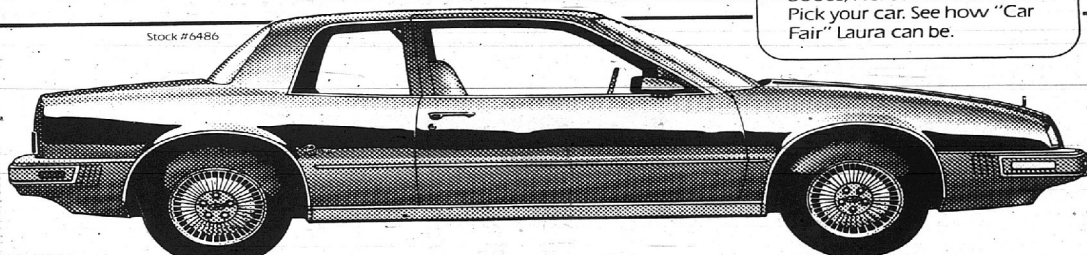

There was no debate in the Senate on the measure and virtually none in the House.

Area Senators Sam Vadalabene, D-Edwardsville, and Vince Demuzio, D-Carlinville, and Reps. Jim McPike, D-Alton, and Sam Wolf, D-Granite City, voted for the district office expense increase legislation.

Unlike other pieces of legislation passed this year, Gov. Thompson did not issue a press release or hold any bill-signing ceremonies for the office allowance expense hike.

From its start as a trading post on the Mississippi River, Cape Girardeau has grown into a city of more than 34,000 inhabitants that blends historic sights with the ideas of tomorrow.

At the city's northern edge, Cape Rock, commemorates the early trading post that predated Cape Girardeau. Historic buildings include the Carriage House, a 1883 restored Victorian home that is on the National Register of Historic Landmarks. Fascinating memorabilia and exhibits can be found at the River Heritage Museum.

Tours of many of these attractions are available by appointment.

Southeast Missouri State University also is a source of many cultural and educational attractions.

Annual events highlighting fall fun are Southeast Missouri District Fair Sept. 8 to 13 at Arena Park, Christmas home tour, Glenn House open house and living nativity scene in December.
